

Finding Information About Candidates

How do I know how my legislator voted on education issues? Where do I find out what legislators, other elected officials and candidates say about their stance on public education?

1. Ask them yourself. Attend a candidate forum, call their office, or write them with your questions. Here are questions to ask:

- ★ How will you make education a top priority for Texas?
- ★ Will you support restoring the education funding cut in 2011, as well as providing sufficient funding for our growing student population?
- ★ Will you support revising school finance laws to be fair to all Texas students?
- ★ Will you work to end the structural deficit that has led to cuts in public education?
- ★ What will you do about the broken testing system, including over-testing of our students?

2. Use these resources to find voting records and answers to surveys. Save Texas Schools is nonpartisan and does not endorse particular candidates, but we do encourage you to research to see whether your vote is going to a candidate who will support high quality public education for all.

Texas Parent PAC endorses and supports pro-education candidates. More information at www.texasparentpac.com

Teach the Vote lists candidates for the Texas legislature (coming mid-April) and State Board of Education (now available), including voting records and answers to surveys about education support. Go to www.teachthevote.org

Texas AFT has information on how legislators voted on key education bills in the 2011. Click on We're Watching, We Remember and We Vote. The site also has excellent information on the specific effect of budget cuts on districts, and data from teachers about how cuts affect their classrooms.

IDRA (Intercultural Development Research Association) has interactive maps that show exactly how much each district has been affected by budget cuts. Great to have when talking with candidates! Also, you can tell your story about budget cuts and see what others in your area are saying. Go to idra.org and click on Fair Funding Now.

Other resources include: the Texas Tribune website, which has extensive general information about legislators and candidates, the Texas Observer website, local party websites, Texas League of Women Voters and the candidate's websites themselves, which oftentimes give you a quick idea of legislative priorities. You can also share what you are finding out with others through local Save Texas Schools Facebook pages. If you want to set up an education-centered candidate forum in your area, let us know and we might be able to help or find others with whom you can partner.

Don't forget to question candidates for school board, local city and county races, State Board of Education and others who influence school policy! Register to vote, and vote in the primary!
